

Christina Voigt

Dr. juris Christina Voigt is Professor at the Department of Public and International law, University of Oslo, Norway. She is the author of “Sustainable Development as a Principle of International Law” (M. Nijhoff, 2009) and edited volumes, such as “Sustainable Development in International and National Law” (with H.C. Bugge, Europa Law Publishing, 2008), “Rule of Law for Nature” (Cambridge University Press, 2013) and “The Common Interest in International Law” (with W. Benedek, K. De Feyter and M. Kettemann, Intersentia, 2014) as well as numerous academic articles. Her teaching and research is primarily in international environmental law and public international law. She works in particular on legal issues of climate change, sustainability and the interface between environmental and trade law. In 2009, she was awarded the International Union for the Conservation of Nature (IUCN) first Academy of Environmental Law Junior Scholarship Prize for her academic writing.

In 2009 and 2010, professor Voigt worked for the Norwegian government as lead negotiator on REDD+ (Reducing emissions from deforestation and forest degradation in developing countries) in the UN climate negotiations. In 2013, she was co-chair for the UNFCCC COP work program on results-based financing for REDD+, which successfully achieved a decision on this matter by COP 19 in Warszawa, November 2013. Currently, she works as legal advisor for the Norwegian Ministry of Climate and the Environment in the negotiations of a new, global climate agreement to be adopted in Paris in December 2015.

Professor Voigt received her legal education at the Universität Passau (Germany), holds an LL.M. in Environmental Law from the University of Auckland (New Zealand), and received a doctorate in law from the University of Oslo. She has taught/is teaching guest courses in international environmental law and in climate change law at the University of Lund, Sweden (2003-2007), the University of Dar es Salaam, Tanzania (2011-12) and the University of Auckland, New Zealand (2014).

Professor Voigt is currently on the Steering Committee of "The Legitimate Roles of the Judiciary in the Global Order" (Pluricourts) research project, awarded Centre of Excellence Status, where she is project coordinator for the environmental sector. She is the chair of the research group on ‘International Law and Relations’ and is a founding member of the research group on ‘Natural Resources Law’. Professor Voigt is the Academic Coordinator of International Affairs at the Faculty of Law, University of Oslo, member of the Law Faculty’s Council for Researcher Education (PFF), board member of the University of Oslo – Energy Initiative, and Vice-President of the Norwegian Society of International Law.
